Visiting Professor in Measurement, Evaluation and Research Methodology (MERM)

Faculty of Education

Department of Educational and Counselling Psychology, and Special Education

The Department of Educational and Counselling Psychology, and Special Education (ECPS) at the University of British Columbia invites applications for a one or two year visiting professor appointment in MERM.

MERM supports a masters and doctoral program and additionally offers courses that meet the methodology requirements for students across the Faculty of Education as well as other Faculties at UBC. These courses are at the upper division undergraduate level, as well as masters and doctoral levels. The successful candidate should have expertise in at least two of the following areas: measurement, statistics, qualitative research methods, and classroom assessment. Experience working in schools is highly desirable, although not necessary.

Evidence of research and scholarly achievement, and commitment to excellence in teaching are required. In addition to contributing to both graduate and undergraduate teaching and service within the department, the successful applicant is expected to have a strong commitment to research, to pursue an active program of research, and provide guidance on research methods to masters and doctoral students.

We invite junior colleagues who have recently completed their PhD for appointments at the assistant professor level as well as senior colleagues who may be seeking opportunities during a sabbatical or leave. Applicants should have an earned doctorate in a relevant field. The appointment will be effective September 1, 2010. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and work commitment.

UBC hires on the basis of merit and is committed to employment equity. All qualified persons are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents of Canada will be given priority. Salary will be commensurate with the candidate's background and experience. Applicants should send a cover letter, a current curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, a sample of recently published work, evidence of teaching effectiveness and the names of three references together with their addresses, phone numbers, and email addresses.

Review of the applications will begin on December 15, 2009 and will continue until the position is filled.

Questions regarding the position should be directed to Sandra Mathison, Ph.D., Program Area Coordinator, MERM at sandra.mathison@ubc.ca
